The one cent coin bears the feather tail glider, the smallest gliding marsupial indigenous to eastern Australia.

The frilled lizard found in the Northern Territory is featured on the two cent coin. The five cent denomination has the spiny anteater, one of only two egg-laying mammals in the world. The male lyrebird, known for its melodious crooning and enthusiastic dancing, is shown on the ten cent piece in action.

The kangaroo and emu are displayed on the fifty cent coin as a part of Australia's Coat of Arms. The emu is the world's second largest bird; only the ostrich is larger.

NUMISMATIC UPDATE

"Numismatic Update" is the title of Steve Ivy Rare Coins monthly bulletin and newsletter. The March publication points out that show activity the past few months has turned hectic and that the coin market is definitely on the rebound. Prices realized at auction were strong.

Steve Ivy reports that new purchase plans recently introduced have been received by clients with enthusiasm. One plan, the Monthly Investment and Numismatic Trading Plan (M.I.N.T.) is designed for the busy professional. The other plan is the Assured Delivery Program.

To receive Numismatic Update or additional information on the programs write Steve Ivy Rare Coins, 7950 Elmbrook Drive, Suite 100, Dallas, Texas 75247.
